As a goal-oriented individual, I have taken strides towards a career in web development. In pursuit of this I have gained skills related to the field through project-oriented experience with web development technologies. I continue to learn more every day and intend to break into the industry soon as an asset to a company that fits my values. Those I would consider mentors have expressed that I am a driven, innovative, and improvement-obsessed person with an unending thirst to learn. I have also been told by those in the industry that my greatest strengths include my quick learning, ability to bring complex problems into smaller, more digestible pieces, and my communication skills in a team environment.
